ITF Study Circle Meeting

Dear Members,

The OECD's Global Anti-Base Erosion Model Rules (Pillar Two) may form part of the Income-tax Act and Rules, possibly as part of the upcoming Finance Bill. BCAS is always at the forefront of new academic initiatives and therefore the ITF Study Circle is starting an in-depth study on these Rules with the literature already available. The Rules are being adopted world over and it is important as an international tax professional that we study and understand them as also their ramifications on existing and future corporate structures. The Rules are complex and require a detailed and attentive study and hence we invite those serious about its study to join us in this initiative. The study will be kick started with an introductory session led by CA K Prasanna on "Overview of OECD's Pillar 2 and its importance"
