Fireside Chat on “Return of Trump- What does it mean for America, India and the World”

Dear Members,

Donald Trump's return to the White House could perhaps pose new challenges to the global economy and the world order. Besieged by the wars, conflicts and the failing states, the world is already in turmoil not seen since the end of the Second World War. With strong leaning for protectionism and “America First” policy propounded by the incoming President of the USA, will the world see new trade wars, increase in the battle for regional supremacy and evolution of alternative currency settlement? Will India be a beneficiary or a victim? Will America regain its dominance as great power or wane with the rise of alternative axis of powers? Besotted by refugee problems, shrinking economies and increasing debt will Europe lose its wherewithal if threatened with high tariff by the US?

Let us hear from an expert Mr Natwar Gandhi his views on the questions above.

Natwar Gandhi is an accomplished American financial expert, best known for his role as Tax Commissioner as well as Chief Financial Officer of Washington, DC (1997-2013). He played a significant role in turning around the city's finances, helping it achieve fiscal stability as well as sound economic footing.
